Take Five co-founder Alon Knoll holds a football made out of rubber sap

BRUSSELS-based Take Five is producing a series of two-minute vignettes to mark the staging of the 2010 FIFA World Cup in South Africa.

Called Football Made In Africa, each episode aims to capture the unbridled enthusiasm of young football-playing fanatics in a different African country. Some use rubber bands or blow up a condom to produce an improvised football or even create goalposts using fishing nets.
